Second Annual Investing in Innovation Forum February 28, 2013 in Atlanta

December 12, 2012, Atlanta ---

The Chamber of Eco Commerce (CEC) is presenting Investing in Innovation Forum, second annual event for international business and policy leaders that will be held in Atlanta, the Eco Commerce Capital of the World. This one-day event will focus on exploring access to finance vital to growing business, and investment in new technology that optimize efficiency and cost savings measures, reduce waste and enhance sustainability.

This event will have a significant 'Financing Innovation' focus and participation by finance, technology, business and policy leaders. The event workshops will focus exclusively on two key areas: Early Stage Investing and Growing Business. The event attendees are also invited to attend 'Innovation for Disaster Preparedness and Recovery' workshop on Friday, March 1, 2013 in Atlanta.

Program

To ensure the high-value interaction Chamber of Eco Commerce (CEC) is known for, this program is capped at 120 attendees. With registration fees well below other industry events, this event is a valuable and cost-effective professional development opportunity for innovators, technology incubators, business and policy leaders, economic development, business development and marketing professionals, and project developers. Contact your local CEC Chapter leader for registration details and prices.

Who is Speaking and Attending

The programming for the event is being developed through the collaboration of Expert Speakers from the CEC's global network, and additional Speakers are being added daily.

As the leading independent B2B organization in the world focused on Eco Innovation and Commerce issues, CEC has a proven track record of attracting broad participation from key organizations worldwide.
